Social
Questionnaire

1. To what extent the traditions and methods associated with classical music are still followed in the contemporary periods? Also discuss the reasons for the survival of the classical music in the midst of different genres of music. (10 Marks)

The Indian classical music tradition of Hindustani and Carnatic are revered world wide for its unique spiritual environment.

Extend to which traditions and methods are followed:

1. Continuance of Guru Shishya parampara:
Recognition of importance of Guru despite even if learned online.
2. The preservation of Gharana-traditions of Hindustani:
(e.g. Lucknow gharana, Agra etc.)
3. Stress on importance of rigidity of notes in Carnatic music - as given by Trinity However certain elements have been changed.
4. Fusion elements in classical

2. "The themes, genre and value conflicts dealt with in the Sangam literature is not essentially different from the ones being used in the contemporary times" Discuss.
(10 Marks)

The Sangam literature (3rd BC - 2nd AD) represents a unique galaxy of literary works compiled under the patronage of Pandyas of Madurai.

These themes, genre and value conflicts are not essentially different from contemporary times:

~~Themes~~

1) On 'agam' and 'pneam': of love and valour
These themes find relevance in every contemporary literature

2) The genre of many are love and familial conflicts (e.g. Patni cult from Silappadikaram)
Such themes are popularized in contemporary cinema.

3) Value conflicts of extra marital affairs and

3. Though initially it may sound as utopian, analyse how Satyagraha acted as a potent weapon in challenging the authority of the colonial power in India. (10 Marks)

~~Satyagraha as defined by Gandhiji is~~ ~~a method of following~~ ~~Satya (truth)~~ ~~Ahimsa (nonviolence)~~

~~This may sound utopian due to its definitions:~~

- ① ~~Do not hate the evildoer; only hat evil is alien to satyagrahi~~
- ② ~~Fours on means at all times and never only on the ends → difficult in practicality~~

~~However it acted as a potent weapon challenging authority because:~~

- ① Previously unseen: hence authority was confused as to how to respond
- ② Gandhi - civil disobedience at Champaran yet treated leniently

4. Examine whether the "class differences" did converge for the cause of freedom or took parallel paths during the course of the Indian independence movement.
(10 Marks)

Class differences - due to economic, political, social differences were inherent in Indian society in forms like rural-urban, rich-poor, capitalist-labour, caste differences etc.

However they converged for freedom cause :-

- ① Involvement of masses (rural and urban) in Gandhian phase (e.g. Salt Satyagraha at Champaran and Chennai)
- ② Participation of capitalists and labourers (e.g. Boycott movement led to indigenization of industry led by Indian capitalists and labour movements for furthering own rights)
- ③ Rich and poor contributed to the fund collection

However there are instances of them taking parallel routes as well for furtheing own interests:

- ① Labour movements ② strikes, blockades for raise in wages and living conditions against capitalist class
- ② In the early phase, the movement was considered by the noban intelligentsia leaving out the rural areas ③ Moderate phase, 1887 started
- ④ During the Quit India movement, despite the lack of support from Socialist groups (due to USSR) the labourers did participate.

This Indian freedom struggle was the true aspira for each section of Indian population to fight for their own rights

5. What were the factors which made the Indians strongly believe that anything short of (purna swaraj) should not be the goal of Independence movement? (10 Marks)

The idea of the goal of Independence movement was not clearly defined for a long time until the PURNA SWARAJ declaration of Lahore Session of Congress (1929).

factors that made Indians strongly believe in Purna Swaraj

1) Lack of clear ideology left the movement divided
e.g. Home Rule League - Tilak v/s Annie Besant

2) Indian aspirations were slowly developing and consolidating - especially the青年
e.g. Jawaharlal Nehru, Subhash Bose etc.

3) Laxadiasical approach of government to Indian demands
e.g. Act of 1919 → a sunless dawn

Do not write anything on the margin

- 4) Disaffection with the colonial superiority mindset and atrocities
e.g. Rowlatt Act, Jallianwala Bagh etc
- 5) Presentation of the Nehru report ⁽¹⁹²⁸⁾ which asked for only Dominion status and yet got disregarded → conveyed the British resistance to any change
- 6) The realization that masses were ready for a form political demand
 - due to the decades of social training especially in 1915 - 1925 period ⁽¹⁹²⁸⁾
- 7) Appointment of Simon Commission - without even a single Indian member was the final realization of British superiority -

Thus it was realized that Indians should get total independence to realize its own dreams and this would decide the course of events later

Do not write anything on the margin

6. "The industrial revolution made some nations rich and many other nations poor" substantiate this statement citing relevant examples. (10 Marks)

Industrial Revolution was a technological revolution that originated in Britain ^{in 1800s} and later spread to nearby European nations, US, Japan etc in 20th century.

It made some nations rich and many nations poor separating the ~~lives~~ world have been better.

1. Culture of superior technology with a few nations
 - made them dominant players in world economy
2. Mass manufacture at cheaper rates replaced the traditional handicrafts (which were slow and costly)
 - e.g. cotton of Manchester (UK) replaced Indian textiles.
3. Need for raw materials by the industrial nations were met through ^{exploitative} ~~a~~ colonialism.
 - e.g. Scramble for Africa ~~which~~ by rich nations

Do not write anything on the margin

4. There was limited technological/income extension to the colonies due to one-way free trade policies.
- i. This resulted in economic drain of wealth (Dadabhai Naoroji)
5. The colonies were converted into markets of finished goods further deteriorating their domestic industry markets.
e.g. Rajas in suits imitating British in India leading to loss of patronage.
- Thus we can see that IR was exploitative and served the interests of only few industrialized nations, and reducing the rest to abject misery.

Do not write anything on the margin

7. "The early moderate nationalists trusted more the western ideals than the power of the Indian masses in bringing in changes in the governance" Comment. (10 Marks)

East Moderate phase of Indian nationalism existed in the end of 19th century (1880s - 1905). Some
They were led by leaders like Dadabhai Naoroji, SN Banerjee, DE Wacha etc.

They trusted western ideals as is seen in their:

- ① Methods of protest: constitutional means through prayers, petitions and protest.
- ② Belief in Western rule of law: @ D. Naoroji naming his book as 'UNBRITISH' as his ideals of Britain were good
- ③ They were a class of nationalists who earned English education and held superior jobs — thereby believing in British institutions

Do not write anything on the margin

✓ Legislation

✓ Industrial Rights
✓ Mass Struggle

① Believed that the ~~next~~ aim of freedom struggle is to increase association in administration rather than total upheaval of power

Their belief in the power of masses to bring change was limited as can be seen in:-

① Dissociation with the mass movements - eg didn't allow Swadeshi movement to spread beyond Bengal

② Didn't recognize the growing mass appeal of extremist leaders

eg denial of Presidencyship (INC) to Tilak (Sarat session)

③ Didn't ~~support~~ believe that the uneducated masses had enough potential to make all massive decisions. eg apprehension over suffrage movement. This served as a background for the rise of Extremist popularity which became undeniable by Lucknow session (1911).

8. How will you justify the view that Pallava monuments represent a watershed moment in the history of Indian architecture? (10 Marks)

Pallavas were a South Indian kingdom established around current Kanchipuram. The Pallava monuments represents a watershed in Indian architecture:-

- ① Created a flowchart towards the development of 1st structural temples in India (eg Shore temples Mahabalipuram)
- ② Progressively from - cave temples → rock cut → structural their history traces the evolution of DRAVIDA style of temple architecture
- ③ Identified unique elements of combination of deities in single shrine.
(eg Trimurti mandapa → Mahendravarman)
- ④ Started the practices of RATHA construction

Do not write anything on the margin

- ④ Pandava Ratha, at Mahabalipuram cumulation it is as fully
- ⑤ Envisaged the cumulation ^{not} of dravidian temple style
- ⑥ Kailasanatha temple at Kanchi
- ⑦ ~~highlighted~~ the practise of giving King's inscriptions at South Indian temples → indication of temples being more than religious centres
- ⑧ Mandappattu inscription, Kudumianmalai Inscription etc
- ⑨ Focused on intricate carvings which has later inspired all temple architectures in India
- ⑩ Pillars of Kailasanatha temple -
These the pillars monuments during the times of Mahendravarman-I, Narasimhavarman and Narasimhavarman-II ~~here the~~ stand out as the MODEL ~~starting~~ point of current Temple models

9. Analyse the nature and influence of the peasant movements in the context of colonial rule in India. (10 Marks)

The resistance of peasants to the oppressive policies of British colonial rule has been in continuance since the Ramasi Peasant revolt in 1852 to the much later Telangana movement.

Nature and Influence

Phase 1: Early peasant movements → Ramasi, tribal movements etc.

- Sporadic and violent
- Suppressed bentally by government @ Vasudev Phadke

Do not write anything on the margin

Phase 2: Gandhian phase → Champaran movement, Rheda Satyagraha

- Integrated into freedom struggle
- Peasant issue as large issue of society

Phase 3: Late movement → Pabna revolts, Pibhagha, Telangana.

- Support of Indian intelligentsia
- Use of resistance to Lathiya and reliance on comes to get their eight redresses

- Occasionally violent

Influence of peasant movements:

- 1) Identified the oppressive nature of colonial revenue administration
- 2) The movements stood for representing their own issues and occasionally targeted against Zamindars etc → led to the dissociation with all oppressors.
- 3) Led to the growth of organizations for presenting unique demands @ AIKS - Shrami Sahayanaand Samasrati
- 4) Led to reforms: especially during the brief stint of Congress governments in 1930s

Peasants are a huge pressure group in India.

Their strength lies in this historical association with freedom struggle

10. "The British took no sincere efforts to leave India as a strong undivided nation".

Analyse in the light of different proposals extended to India in the 1940s.

(10 Marks)

The culmination of Indian independence in partition and associated bloodshed can be largely associated with the British attitude.

They took no sincere efforts to leave India undivided

- ① Simla India Mission in 1942 \Rightarrow recognized and gave an unappr. unequal reto authority to Muslim League.
- ② The Wavell Plan (1945): envisaged a plan for expanding Viceroy's Executive council with 'caste' Hindus and muslims: futher communal divide in India.
- ③ Plan Balkan for India: The Mountbatten's initial plan to give independence to all the ~~states~~

④ Ahmed Cabinet Mission Plan Mountbatten Plan

(1947) - ultimately resulting in Partition.

However, on close observation one can notice certain instances where Britain favoured United India in the same period:

~~You can mention this part later~~
① Wavell plan - option was given for joint command-action → though couldn't be implemented

② Cabinet Mission Plan (1946) - the constituent assembly created wants to have representatives of all sections to bring all together.

③ Partition plan rejected independence to Princely States and asked to join either dominions.

④ This finally the plan was to divide India but to keep the larger India united as much as possible (keeping Pakistan small)

Do not write anything on the margin

11. To what extent communalism did act as an undercurrent in the Indian freedom struggle? (15 Marks)

The Indian freedom struggle was sadly influenced by the spirit of communalism - the idea that India has several communities (importantly Hindus and Muslims) whose aims are different, ideologies non matching, resulting in a zero sum game.

It acted as an undercurrent in freedom struggle

Do not write anything on the margin

1. The first war of Indian independence (1857):

was inspired by communal interests ↗

question of the Enfield Rifle - not acceptable for both Hindus and Muslims

2. However the united front offered by Indians in 1857, led to the government retaliating with a

'divide and rule policy'

④ separate Hindu & Muslim battalions

3. Social reform movements further aggravated the communal tensions

④ Wahabi movement, Shuddhi movement etc

4. In the moderate phase, there was relatively less influence of communalism - Secular politics of urban intelligentsia

5. flowered, the extremist phase, invoked religious symbols to scare the British which alienated communities

④ Ganapati festival of Shri tilak

6. During the 1910s, the emergence of strong communal organizations ④ Muslim League

and Hindu Mahasabha

7. The Non Cooperation movement involved

a muslim sentiment (eg: sanitation of Caliphate) which brought religion to the centre of political freedom struggle

8. The government policy of appeasement to the Muslim minority during the Worldwars (1 and 2) led to a reactionary factor within British dominance

9. Failure of the Nehru report (1928) on religious lines highlight the divergencies

10. The final call for communal politics came with Jinnah's 14 points and Declaration of Pakistan

Do not write anything on the margin

The Indian freedom movement had to witness the bloated of partition and riots in the 1920-1950 period from local (eg: Mappila revolts) to national level (eg: Naokhali revolts).

This was due to lack of pragmatism to build a nation on secular politics and also Jinnah's power politics

12. What were the factors which made the political integration of India a relatively "smooth" affair which in reality can be interpreted as a very "complex" task?
(15 Marks)

The political integration of India

~~from the 1947 - 1964 phase was both smooth (in certain sectors) and complex~~

Factors which made integration smooth

1. History of Freedom struggle: which created a 'nationalism' in the minds of ppl people who wanted to be integrated
2. The 'partition plan': which didn't offer independence of full sovereignty to the princely states
3. The large portions of India were under British administration which were immediately integrated e.g Bengal, Bombay, Madras
4. The policy of diplomacy and tactics

Do not write anything on the margin

Implemented by Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel

Big apple

e.g Requesting the princely states to surrender all princely powers like foreign relations, communications in return for heavy financial pressure

Cont. poison
Federated Sovereignty

5. Support given to the movements in Princely states - internal pressure to join India -

Thus by the time of 1950 itself majority of the regions were integrated rather smoothly except for the complex problems offered by few areas.

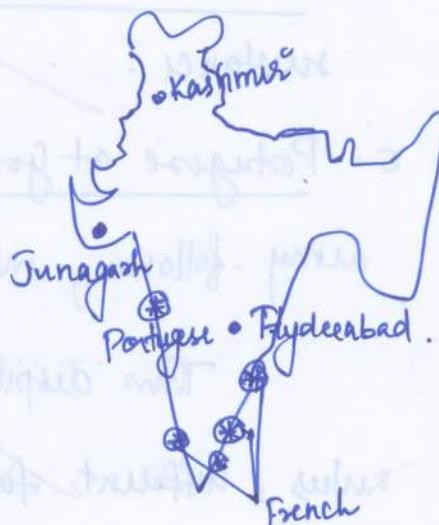

Do not write anything on the margin

However these regions were also integrated

Seemingly smoothly

~~Complexities~~ ~~Kashmir, Junagadh, Port Blair, French~~

1. Junagadh: the princes forced to submit to the popular pressure to join India.

Complexities in postindependence consolidation

Churn of linguistic diverseities

Thus army entered and later conducted plebiscite

2. Kashmir: Amidst the fear of Pak Pathan tribes attack the Raja signed the Instrument of Accession

3. Hyderabad: The complex issue of Razakars force was dealt by Indian army. The Nizam finally submitted to an offer of heavy payy purse

The foreign territories,

4. French at Pondicherry: gave up without much resistance.

5. Portuguese at Goa: gave in post theato of Indian army - following which a plebiscite was conducted -

Thus despite the complexities - of multiple, rulers, different factions, the Indian consolidation was completely in 1964 factfully

13. "Even though Government of India Act- 1935 was the largest act passed during the British rule in India, it was hardly put into practice." Discuss. (15 Marks)

The Government of India Act 1935 -

was the last major act by British in India which ventured to change the entire federal structure of the nation.

Do not write anything on the margin

However it was hardly put into practice:-

- ① The All India Federation that was envisaged by the Act didn't come into force as the princely states failed to recognize the provision.
- ② The elements of Provincial autonomy with detailed provisions had less implementability -

- due to overreaching veto power of the governors

- ③ Practice of dyarchy implemented at the Central legislature - created powerless yet responsible ministers with limited potential for change.
- ④ The scheme of membership was complicated.
- ⑤ Franchise was fairly limited - only ~14%

However the 1935 Act was landmark act which helped India in the longrun :-

- ① Major inspiration for Indian Constitution : which was criticized as carbon copy of 1935 Act
- ② Provided a scheme of regular elections to central and provincial legislatures.
- ③ Introduction of provincial autonomy : has put into practice localized deinion making. This made the citizens realize that true independence is important for total development.

Do not write anything on the margin

④ The brief stint of the Congress ministers post 1937 elections were significant

⑤ release of political prisoners

Reduction of 50% of land revenue etc.

Thus the 1935 Act though was hardly put into place in its entirety, it helped in solidification of the Indian administration which is reflected in the current constitution

Do not write anything on the margin

In the post Mughal superiority era (after Aurangzeb) a centralized and sustainable rule was not established till the British attachment post 1857.

There were [multiple reasons] for this scenario:-

- 1) The reluctance to completely dissociate from Mughal suzerainty in the initial phases e.g. Awadh, Bengal - where the Nawabs continued to assuage while establishing local power.
- 2) The contenders - Musafirs chiefly - was preoccupied by local power struggles amongst own factions
e.g. Gauravanshi, Holkars, Peshwas - internal conflict

3) Non availability of a united front due to localized funds among Indian princes.

A) Continuous wars in Indian subcontinent amongst the foreign entrants themselves which complicated political scenario.

eg. Carnatic war - British v/s French

5) ~~No~~ Lack of adequate finances with single authority to consolidate power centrally.

6) Rising conflicts intentionally staged by the tactics of British to keep the princely states under control.

eg policies of subsidiary alliance

7) Lack of nationalistic spirit among the people themselves - only localised affiliation.

↳ This was evident in the 1857 revolt.

Do not write anything on the margin

8. Lack of military might to resist a united attack among other contenders of Marathas.

(e) overreliance on Pindaris and lack of adequate training

In this background, the British slowly established themselves. a) initially as economic powers - mercantilist policies

b) Eliminating competitors (e.g. French, Portuguese)

c) Wars of direct confrontation (e.g. Battle of Plassey)

d) Treaties of subsidiary alliance, doctrine of Lapse etc.

e) Superior military and united spirit.

This resulted in suppression of 1857 revolt under Bahadur Shah and the Queen's Proclamation (1858).

15. "There was a clear dichotomy between what the British professed about the democratic ideals and what they put in practise in India" Discuss in the light of different enactments made during the colonial rule in India. (15 Marks)

The Great Britain had championed democratic ideals since the times of Magna Carta (1215). Their principles of rule of law, parliamentary democracy etc were however not effectively implemented in India.

Dichotomy between the ideals and practices of Colonial Rule

Do not write anything on the margin

- ① The Queen's Declaration (1858) envisaged an end of 'era of aggressions' and equal treatment for all the subjects ↳ clearly violated in acts like Indian Councils Act 1961 (white superiority)
- ② The promises of equality ↳ open competition for Indian civil services were clearly violated ↳ Reduction of age of civil services during

Lord Lytton . (1876)

③ Discriminatory practices under white man's burden pathology

④ Failure of the Ilbert Bill in British Parliament.

⑤ Lack of effectiveness in implementing democracy in India - even in the latest 1935 Act only 14% of Indians were enfranchised

⑥ Lack of justice mentality

⑦ Delhi durbar (1876) during extreme famine in Bengal - chiefly due to misappropriation

⑧ Against rejections of constitutional demands raised by Indians

⑨ Partition of Bengal (1905) despite requests, protest etc and later amalgamation (1911)

⑩ Discit following of 'divide and rule' strategy declaration of Republic with universal adult suffrage, independant election commission etc

16. Critically examine the relevance of the teachings of Swami Dayanand Saraswati in the contemporary Indian society. (15 Marks)

Swami Dayananda Saraswati was a 19th century social reformer who championed Hindu reform movements through the creation of Arya Samaj.

Relevance of the teachings

Do not write anything on the margin

① 'go back to Vedas' : the ideology encourages individuals to revisit the earliest texts of religion and to interpret it in own way

↳ Relevant amidst recent polarizations

② Beef Ban, Cow vigilanism etc.

③ Stress on education: Creation of Dayanand Anglo-Vedic college: highlight the need for education, its potential for transformation and equality in access

↳ Relevant amidst high drop out ratio in secondary education levels, poor enrollment in higher education

③ Blending of the good principles of both West and East: relevant to pursue the materialistic goals while satisfying the spiritual call amidst rising mental health issues in India ($>14\%$).

④ Focus on individual development- proceeding to societal and national levels.

↳ Relevant given the fundamental duty to elevate oneself to all pursuits of self actualization.

⑤ Anti caste attitude and need to break caste barriers:
↳ Relevant amidst the continued hidden untouchability, plight of Safai Karmacharis etc.

Do not write anything on the margin

⑥ Importance to women ~~and~~ - true equality of Vedic times.

↳ Relevant since the high gender gap in society, poor labour force participation rate ($\approx 20\%$)

⑦ Role in social status of muslims etc

However Swami's certain teachings have been misinterpreted like Shuddhi movement as a mass conversion movement. Amidst the cases like Lore jihad debates, strong acts against interreligion marriages (eg: UP) etc, a cue needs to be taken from the ~~failure~~ of Shuddhi movement for it created further polarization, communalization of society which will hamper social fabric.

Thus elevation of India as newaguru

in Amit Daal necessitates application of teachings from the teachings of and life of Swami

Dayanand Saraswati

17. Elaborate the major constituents of the state emblem of India. Also analyse, how they symbolise the values upheld in the Indian constitution. (15 Marks)

The state emblem of India is the Lion Capital on the Dharmachakra Abacus.

Major constituents

and symbolization of values

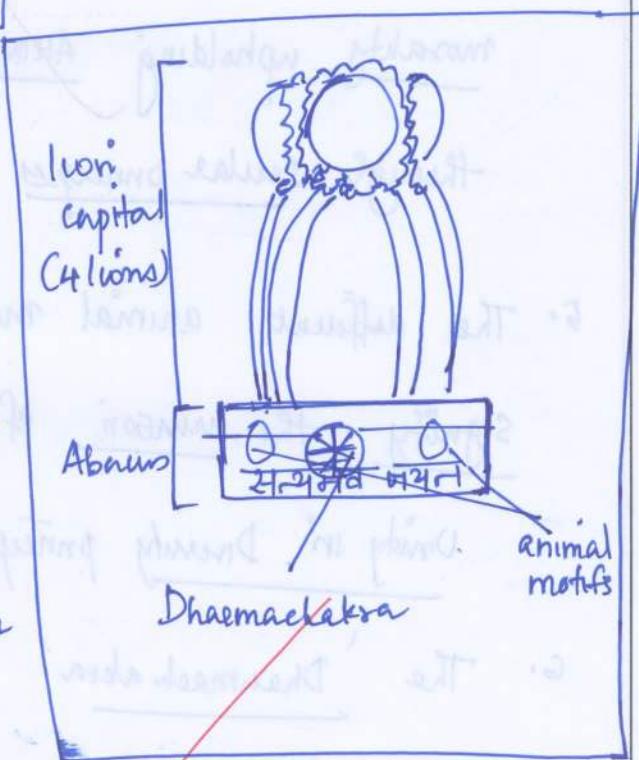

of Indian constitution

1. Lion Capital: with 4 lions

Signify the watchful state of existence

2. Lions : represent the Indian might - Sovereignty (Preamble)

3. Unity of the 4 lions represent the United spirit

Do not write anything on the margin

of the cowboy

4. Satyameva Jayate from Mundaka Upanishad

signify the Indian upholding of truth

under all situations

↳ This is in line with the constitutional morality upholding AHMASA, tolerance

through secular principles (eg: Articles 25-28)

5. The different animal motifs on the abans signify the unison of different elements →

Unity in Diversity principle

6. The 'Dhammachakra' signify the continual

18. Analyse how the Bhakti and Sufi movements have laid a solid foundation to the model of multiculturalism being practised in India. (15 Marks)

The Bhakti and Sufi movements

~~originated in the Tamil alvars, nayanmars of 8th century and Persian mystic saints respectively.~~

They have laid a foundation to multiculturalism of India

① Established coexistence of different religions and sects in India:

② Sikh religion - founded by Guru Nanak

③ Enabled reforms within individual religions
④ Sufism - proclaimed - love for God is more important than Rozā or Namaz (symbolic intuah)

⑤ Helped eliminating the dominating influence of obscureantist religions of that time.

⑥ Shankarācharya simplifying Brahmanical Hinduism.

Do not write anything on the margin

④ Established tolerance and mutual assistance transcending religious barriers

eg Sarais of Sufis, dargahs etc accessible by all

⑤ Helped in revival of local languages

eg Braj Bhasha - Ramananda,

⑥ Creation of the versatile vernacular literature of India
eg Vachana Sahitya - of Basavanna (Kannada)

⑦ Creation of unique musical traditions unique to Indian subcontinent

eg Amir Khusrau's Qawali combining Indian and Persian elements

⑧ Creation of artistic traditions that have sustained in present India eg Sattriya by Shankaradeva (Assam) - presently a classical dance form of India.

⑨ Establishment of communities of religion sealed

Do not write anything on the margin

in secular Indian constitution

(eg) 'Sulh-i-kul' doctrine passed through Akbar

① Establishment of strong nationalistic ideals in Indian society
(eg) works of Tukaram, Gondra etc

However one can see that there were limitations.

① In scope : ~~the dominant class resisted changes~~
hence the continuance of caste system

② Despite attempts to ~~women~~ empowerment, they were truly liberalized into mass movement only at freedom struggle phase.

③ Revival of orthodoxy was another consequence

(eg) ~~the~~ ruler like Aurangzeb who contributed to communalist ideology in India.

However the Bhakti-Sufi movements represent a watershed in Indian history which contributed to our composite culture.

all the major reason for ethnic conflicts

① Rwanda genocide

② ~~Inadequate industrialization~~ of colonies

due to ~~1-way free trade~~ policy of the imperialists have left the ~~Afro-Asian~~ colonies to the mercy of external powers (who benefit from conflict)

③ The inhuman practices of slave trade, indentured labour condition etc which deprived

the individuals of local identities - like land titles etc

④ ~~Revenue settlement policies~~, ~~which are indentured~~ ~~labour laws etc~~

⑤ Promises of powers for ~~its own~~ benefits

⑥ ~~Balfour declaration promising Jewish state in~~ ~~Israel by UK has resulted in the resettlement~~ of Palestine. (for world war support)

However, such issues are also due to:-

- ① Centuries of ethnic conflicts, long before arrival of imperialists
- ② Local ^{power} captures and occupation (e.g. Junta in Myanmar)
- ③ ~~Post-imperialistic~~ economic issues - (e.g. Sri Lankan crisis due to debt trap diplomacy)
- ④ Neo-imperialistic strategies of present world powers.
(e.g. UK-Israel axis alienating Palestine entirely)
- ⑤ Lack of able leadership.
(e.g. 25% of Rwandan leaders - with adequate educational background.)

However, one cannot totally isolate these needs to be united efforts on international platforms to aid conflict resolution of global South (e.g. BRICS leadership - of non imperialistic powers)

20. Socio-political movements had a profound impact in the policies and legislations of the post independent India. Critically analyse. (15 Marks)

Policy formulation and legislation should ideally be inspired by political movements in a fruitful democracy.

In India, Socio-political movements have impacted policies and legislations.

- ① In the policy requirement stage: public movements play role.
e.g. State Reorganization Act 1956. inspired by the movement for linguistic reorganization of States.
- ② In ~~policy~~ identifying the gaps in legislations:
e.g. Lokpal and Lokayukta Act was due to the political movement under Anne Hazare for a comprehensive anti corruption evaluation.

③ Ensuring policies catering to women empowerment

eg Nirbhaya Movement led to the Nirbhaya Act

for establishment of Nirbhaya fund for women's safety -

④ Bringing the unique representational demands of hitherto undeserved communities

eg demands for reservation - among SC population of converts etc.

⑤ Identification of the needs of the time

eg MKSS efforts to implement the RTI Act 2009.

⑥ Checks on arbitrary policies and legislations by acting as a pressure group

eg Recent farmer protest which forced the government to retract the farm laws.

However in certain situations, such movements have been inspired by wrong intention tainted

true intentions:

① Influence of International agenda against friendly relations

② TN movement against Sri Lanka for Tamil rights

③ Presurizing the judiciary to intervene transcending separation of powers doctrine

④ higher filings of PILs

⑤ Turn into violent agitation affecting national security.

⑥ Khalistan protests

⑦ Unfettered movements giving scope for shocking mentality recent Manipur violence

In a true democracy, the government is expected to be responsive, accountable, and transparent to the people's wishes. Thus these movements are necessary yet needs to be checked with the principles of constitutional morality.
